Tips from the dentist for beautiful, strong and healthy teeth

Start brushing your child's milk teeth as early as possible. Do this with a small brush with firm hairs and use toothpaste with fluoride.

Limit the number of moments per day that sweets are eaten to a minimum.

Visit the dentist every half year from the age of 2 onwards.

Sarah and the tooth fairy

When Sarah has brushed her teeth, She wants to go to sleep, to bed we go, It is late, you know, but what happens when she yawns? Wobble wobble, that feels rum, Come and look into my mouthy mum!

Don't you worry, Sarah fair Your grown up tooth is nearly here Just brush your teeth and smile Your teeth will be clean and white

If it falls out the fairy will come And look into your teeth box to see what you have done She's got teeth herself which are bright and white And when she sits next to you she just might Take a quick look at your teeth and see how they shine.

So do not brush all day, and the tooth fairy will come with her magic wand. She'll make the tooth fairy shine like a star because you're clever!

We will put your teeth in your box and write something too And after a while you'll see it and smile: All your milk teeth will be there in a row just for you!

Sleep well sweet Sarah, Say hello to the tooth fairy if you see her tonight?

milk teeth

The development of milk teeth From six months onwards, the teeth and molars start growing. The milk tooth card and reverse side of this booklet show the average eruption times and time that the primary teeth and molars come loose.

Transition of milk teeth When you are five or six years old, your teeth start to change. First your front teeth come loose and are replaced and then the rest follows. The roots dissolve; the crowns fall out and are replaced by the permanent teeth. Only until you have reached the age of 12, this period of replacement is over.

Adult teeth The first molar of the new teeth erupts when you are approximately 6 years old. This molar appears at the back of the milk molars. When you are about 13 years old, you have been provided with permanent teeth, except for one type of molar. Between the age of 18 and 21 your wisdom teeth (third molars) will erupt. However, this does not happen to everybody. The complete permanent teeth consist of 32 teeth.

Note: once your tooth or molar starts standing loose than this is a sign that the process of mixing has started. Never force teeth which are loose, this may cause damage and is not necessary because the tooth or molar will finally fall out by itself.
